Our Culture

Personality, culture, and human values are cornerstones of Jackson Walker’s identity. That shows in the way people treat, respect, and help each other—staff and lawyers alike—and how they enjoy an atmosphere different from that of other firms. The Firm’s culture and commitment to excellence have been major factors in its success. That is why we are always seeking talented associates who enhance the Firm’s personality, diversity, culture, and focus on human values.

Our values stem from our goal of creating a positive impact in all that we do. Each day, we work to create a culture that promotes altruism within our firm and beyond to the communities where we live and work.

“We take our work seriously, but not ourselves.”

A Clear Path to Partnership

Partners and senior associates will work closely with you to ensure you get the skills and mentorship necessary to achieve your career goals, and we work hard to maximize opportunities available to summer associates.

We involve summer associates in a variety of the work our attorneys experience throughout their careers. For instance, a summer associate interested in a transactional practice group may draft documents or attend client meetings, closings, or negotiations. Those interested in litigation may attend hearings, witness depositions, or mediations and could participate in client meetings or conference calls.

In addition to substantive work assignments, summer associates will have the opportunity to participate in a mock trial based on an active case, or a mediation seminar. Through these experiences, summer associates receive practical instruction designed to make young lawyers better advocates for their clients.
